

Popular Science Magazine

What's New MUST-SEE TECHNOLOGY

THE GOODS

20 SERIOUSLY HOT PRODUCTS THAT (ALMOST) SPEAK FOR THEMSELVES.

The Perfect Roommate
Kärcher RoboCleaner → When it's full of dust bunnies, this robot vacuum comes and attacks the infested beam from the police in back to its base. $1,500; kero.com

Armed with Data
SwissMemory USB pocketknife → Swiss Army found something else to build into a knife. USB key removable for air travel. Available in 64MB or 128MB. Price not set; victorinox.com

A Flashlight with Flair
Gerber Infemo → Each of its black aluminum arms is topped with an LED bulb, so you can aim light in several directions. $55; gerbergear.com

No Patience? No Problem.
Eastman Outdoors Nova → A reeling, vacuum-waxed cylinder does two days' worth of monitoring in 20 minutes. $200; eastmout.com

A Better Nozzle
Craftman Easy Squirt → A recessed trigger lets you pull with your strongest digit, so you can handle that garden hose with authority. $10; sears.com

Motor Minder
Craftman Fresh Start → A dispenser needed to fix gas keeps an oily release chemical to stabilize the fuel in your gas mower. $17; craftman.com

Power Suit
Solar SCOTTeVest → You charge electronics while you wander. Solar panels on the back like a power pack that can top off a cellphone battery in 8 hours. $475; scottevest.com

Names That Tune
Audivox Vox 8610 → Dial "D" hold the handset up to a speaker for 10 seconds, and Virgin Mobile reads you the song name. $119; virginmobileusa.com